

Letter from Alexander Graham Bell to Mabel Hubbard Bell, June 3, 1907, with transcript

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL TO MABEL (Hubbard) BELL Halifax Hotel, Halifax, Canada. June 3rd, 1907. Dear Mabel:

A horrible thought has just occurred to me. Perhaps you may be thinking of taking advantage of my absence to have experiments made upon yourself by Sir Almroth Wright's Method. This disturbs me greatly. Could not for one moment think of allowing you to be the first to be experimented upon. The method is too new — and there is danger in it too. Please send me telegram to assure me that you will do nothing of the kind. If I don't receive this assurance will start right back.

My dear little wifie I love you. Please don't try any rash unnecessary experiments. Just off — good-bye.

Your loving husband, Alec.
